Marching to the Beat of a Different Drummer

A PORTRAIT: 36 YEARS ON THE ROAD.

By Jon Powers

RHINEBECK

Coffin and Labrador puppy in tow, 64-year-old Elzear Duquette strolled into Rhinebeck recently, on the final leg of a 200,000 mile journey that has taken him to five continents and 46 countries in the past 36 years.

And it all started with a dream.

Duquette sees nothing unusual about traveling around the world in a coffin-on-wheels; by now, he's used to sidelong glances, whispered taunts and skeptical police. With a gap-toothed smile and a friendly wave, the sprightly French-Canadian determinedly marches onward to the beat of a different drummer.

It was in 1939 that Duquette, a student at the University of Montreal, dreamed that he traveled around the world in a casket. It seemed like a pretty good idea at the time, so away he went.

That first voyage took him from Montreal to Vancouver and back— a modest 8,500 miles. Since then, he has criss-crossed North America, trudged up and down the hills of Europe, swatted mosquitos in South America, weathered the heat of North Africa and exchanged greetings with the Emperor of Japan. His journey, however, is nearing its end.

Duquette will be 65 next year and figures he deserves a rest. With the money from his old-age pension, he plans on buying a motorized camper, which will enable him to see the sights of the world in a somewhat more leisurely fashion.

In the meantime, there are hills to climb, places to see, people to meet and questions to answer about the blue aluminum casket that follows Duquette on his world-wide voyage.

Festooned with signs, postcards and newspaper clippings, and topped by a canvas awning, the coffin is mounted on a sulky frame. Pots and pans, jugs of water, food and clothing dangle from the sides; on the back, Duquette has rigged an ingenious shower and a camper's stove.

Inside, a mattress and pillows provide Duquette with a comfortable resting place. When the sun sets in the west, and the curious have departed for more traditional lodgings, Duquette crawls in the box, lowers the lid and slumbers soundly until morning. He doesn't worry too much about someone disturbing his sleep in the middle of the night.

The casket is only slightly less unusual than Duquette himself. Sporting shoulder length blonde hair and build that belies a lifetime of back-breaking work, he smiles often, talks a mile a minute and distributes autographed photos with aplomb.

With no timetable to keep, Duquette travels at a leisurely pace. He'll spend two or three days in each community along his route, basking in the sun and greeting newfound friends. When restlessness sets in, he straps the harness around his shoulders and heads down the road, pulling his coffin behind hi. With a strong tailwind and a cooperative terrain, he can cover 30 miles a day. "But if I only do five miles, so what?," he shrugged.

Duquette's next stop is Lake George. He hopes to reach Plattsburgh by August. He'll spend the winter in Florida, where he plans to finish his second book about his travels, and then return to New York next spring, for a final trek to Montreal for the 1976 summer Olympics. Smart money says he'll make it with room to spare.

Moves to Control N-Plant Building

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The Assembly has approved a bill that would require legislative approval before any nuclear fission plant construction could be done during the next three years.

The proposal, heralded as a "safe energy act" by supporters, also would convert the state Atomic and Space Development Authority into an Energy Research and Development Authority.

Assemblyman Daniel Haley, (D-Waddington), said the new authority would "engage in research, development and promotion of new energy sources, including energy sources from the sun, wind and waste materials."

Under the proposal, which faces strong opposition in the Senate, building or expanding of the nuclear plants would require legislative approval. The State Power Authority only could build new nuclear fission plants if it could show "compelling need."

The bill, which had 86 sponsors, had only 37 votes cast against it.

In other developments in the legislature Monday:

• The Assembly passed a bill extending for one year the governor's ability to declare a state of emergency for fuel shortages. The sponsor, Assemblyman Daniel B. Walsh,(D-Franklinville), said the extension was needed because last year "the dimensions and duration of the fuel crisis were unknown. Now ... the United States may be facing the tightest gasoline situation since the Arab embargo."

• The Assembly passed a bill limiting fines that could be imposed on striking public workers under the Taylor law. In a case where the employer did not bargain in good faith, financial fines could not be imposed. The present law allows a penalty of two days pay for every day on strike.

• In a mild surprise, the Assembly narrowly defeated a bill that would have required most public water supplies in the state to be treated with fluoride. The proposal was one of Gov. Hugh L. Carey's program bills. The vote on the fluoride bill was 69-61, seven short of the 76 votes needed for passage in the Assembly. Most opponents objected because the proposal would have stripped local communities of a voice in the matter.

(The Carey forces have not given up on the passage of mandatory fluoridation this year, however. With 20 Assemblymen not voting and only eight more votes needed for passage, Assemblyman sponsor Irwin Landis of Great Neck said he'd reintroduce the bill before this year's session is adjourned, possibly by this Friday. If it is defeated a second time it can not be acted on again this year. Local Assemblymen Maurice D. Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) and Emeel Betros (R-99th) voted against fluoridation.)

• A measure prohibiting medical experiments on a person without his informed, written consent was given final legislative approval in the Senate and forwarded to the governor. The measure, sponsored by Sen. Emanuel R. Gold, (D-Queens), applies only to pure research related to ailments the subject is not suffering from.

• A bill which would remove the geographic basis for eligibility for aid under the SEEK program at City University of New York was given final legislative approval in the Senate by a vote of 37-13. Black legislators charged that without increasing the budget appropriation for the program, it would dilute the intention to help minorities obtain college training.

• An amendment to the tax law to exempt agricultural seeds and fertilizer from the sales and use tax was approved by the Senate and sent to the Assembly. The bill was introduced by Sen. Martin S. Auer, (R-Syracuse).

• The Senate passed and sent to the Assembly a measure prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sex in high school extracurricular programs offered by service clubs and organizations such as Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions.

Senate Investigators Call Mafioso

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite a Chicago slaying and a problem with secret documents, Senate intelligence investigators say they are determined to ferret out details of possible past CIA plots to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and others.

Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, summoned as a witness today John Roselli, an associate of reputed Chicago underworld figure Sam Giancana. Investigators say they believe both played a role in an attempt against Castro, his younger brother Raul, and Che Guevara.

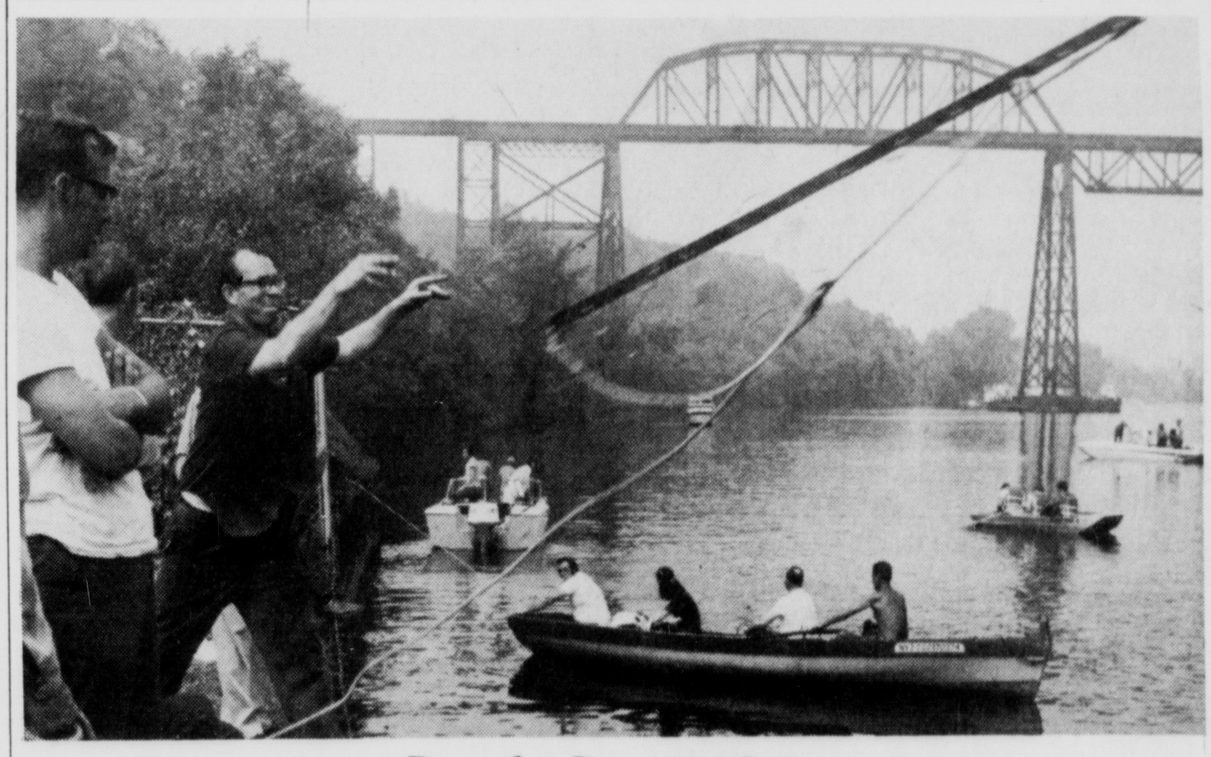
Giancana was shot to death last week in a gangland-style assassination at his suburban Chicago home, possibly because a Chicago crime syndicate was concerned he might talk to a grand jury seeking to question him.

Roselli, Church told reporters Monday, was offered protection by the Senate committee but did not take up the offer.

Mafia leaders stay away from Sam Giancana's funeral. Story on page 18.

Roselli and Giancana are reported to have been installed in a Miami Beach hotel in the early 1960s to oversee and execute a plot to poison the three Cubans.

Church announced the Senate panel had been forced to put off testimony by former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird and other past officials because of unexplained White House reluctance to provide certain documents.



Drag for Drowned Boy

Members of the Kingston Police Department, Ulster County Sheriff's Department and Kingston, Ulster Hose and Port Ewen Fire Departments drag the Rondout Creek off the James Berardi property Monday afternoon for the body of Moses Harrel Jr., 10, of South Pine Street, who drowned while swimming with several companions. The boy's body was recovered about 15 feet from shore in 15 to 20 feet of water at about 3:45 p.m. Det. Lt. Charles McCullough explained today that 14-year-old Beth Buzzanco of 35 Hone Street attempted to rescue the boy but was forced to release him when she too, started to go under. (Freeman photo)

K Tells of Cambo Death Toll

ATLANTA (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today he has received reports of a very high death toll among Cambodian citizens since that Southeast Asian nation fell under Communist control.

Kissinger told a news conference there also have been reports of fighting between the South Vietnamese and the Cambodians since the Communist takeover of both nations two months ago.

He said such clashes were reported along the border between the two countries and and on offshore islands, including the one near which the American freighter Mayaguez was captured by the Cambodians a month ago.

"We do know that there has been a rather terrible toll of civilians that has been inflicted upon the Cambodian people" as a result of the Communistordered evacuation of the country's towns, Kissinger said. "The death toll according to reports that we have is very great."

Kissinger's news conference followed a speech Monday night in which he strongly warned Israel and Egypt they must both make concessions for a Middle East peace and announced in apparent reference to Turkey that "no ally can pressure us by threat of termination" of joint agreements.

Asked at the news conference about his allies statement, Kissinger replied: "It was intended as a general warning to our allies. It was not directed at any one ally. Alliances have to be two-way streets."

Kissinger also told the new conference:

—He had "no hard evidence" to support reports of fighting inside Cambodia between Communist and right-wing forces.

—Congress will have to approve any American guarantee to Israel that would form part of a final Middle East peace settlement.

—The administration has "not made any precise decision" as yet on whether the United States will attempt another round of Middle East shuttle peace diplomacy or support a call for a Geneva peace conference.

Asked if he had come to Atlanta to help President Ford's 1976 election campaign in "George Wallace country," the German-born Kissinger laughed and replied, "No one will consider my accent a Yankee accent."

He said he was making trips into the "heartland of America" in order to explain foreign policy and to hear the views of local citizens.

"Only with a strong public support on a bipartisan basis can we hope" to have a successful foreign policy, he said.

He was then asked if his domestic traveling had anything to do with Ford's decision to seek a full term in 1976. "The President considers foreign policy beyond partisan politics," he said.

After delivering a 38-minute foreign policy speech Monday night, the secretary of state did not pause when one of the 750 persons in the audience asked about a North Korean threat to South Korea.

"North Korea belongs to a small and select group of the most aggressive regimes in the world," Kissinger said. He also told Egypt and Israel they must both make concessions for Middle East peace.

Indira Gandhi Can Stay, but

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled today that Indira Gandhi can remain as prime minister while she appeals her conviction for election law violations, but the mixed verdict could bring new pressure on her to resign as India's leader.

The decision stripped Mrs. Gandhi of her right to vote in Parliament and her supporters wore glum, shocked looks outside the court building when the ruling was announced.

Supreme Court Justice Krishna Iyer granted the 57-year-old prime minister a conditional stay of her June 12 lower court conviction, which had also ordered her barred from office for six years.

Supporters of Raj Narain, the Socialist leader who brought the charges against Mrs. Gandhi shortly after she swept back into office in 1971 national parliamentary balloting, danced jubilantly outside when Iyer's ruling was announced.

Senior cabinet ministers and leaders of Mrs. Gandhi's ruling Congress party drove to her residence for consultations after the ruling.

Iyer's order could have serious adverse political and psychological effects on Mrs. Gandhi's image, making her a national leader who is barred from exercising her right to vote in Parliament, political observers said.

Although today's court ruling could be considered a victory of sorts for Mrs. Gandhi, inasmuch as it did not order her to resign, Narain told a large crowd of supporters outside his home that the prime minister does not deserve her position and for her to stay on would be a violation of the judiciary and democracy.

Mrs. Gandhi was not present for Monday's appeal or today's order by Iyer.

Couple Bucks Social Security

CLINTONDALE

Claiming they can get better coverage with a private insurance plan rather than under Social Security, a Clintondale couple Anthony and Mildred Bamond Jr., have brought a civil action against the Department of Justice, U.S. Social Services Commissioner James B. Cardwell and New York State Comptroller Arthur Levitt.

"What guarantee is there that Social Security funds will be there when I retire 18 years from now?" Bamond said, noting that the Social Security administration "paid out more than it took in last year."

The Bamonds claim that the present Social Security system is discriminatory. Contending that they have paid into the system since the beginning, they take exception to any recipients who contributed less receiving an equal or greater amount in benefits.

Bamond, a state building inspector whose wife is not presently employed takes exception to what he calls "the great Social Security rip-off" in which $15.58 a week is taken out of his pay.

The plaintiffs also challenge the authority of the Pension Reform Act of 1974, the setting up of the new tax-sheltered individual retirement accounts. "We feel that they should be incorporated into the present Social Security system, because today's expenditures exceed its income. Where will the funds come from to keep the system solvent?" they ask.

The Bamonds feel that with a private annuity plan of only the assessments of the employe credited to a banking institution of their choice they will benefit because it could be used as collateral in obtaining a mortgage (at low cost) or loans for a home or automobile.

They also feel that the plan would encourage workers to obtain homes. Mortgage cancellation life insurance will protect the banking institution, the Bamonds claim.

The plea is to be heard in U.S. District Court, Southen District of New York before three judges.

Parks Open Tomorrow as Summer Recreation Gets Underway

KINGSTON — City parks and playgrounds open for the summer season tomorrow afternoon at 1 p.m., Superintendent of Recreation Andrew J. Murphy III and Summer Activities Director Joseph Manello announced today.

The Summer Program officially began on Monday with a 2½-day training session for all new playground directors by the New York State Training Institute.

Standard week to week events include boys and girls softball, weekly all playground tournaments, arts and crafts, and games. One very special weekly program in the parks will be the Recreation Department-sponsored tennis clinics which will begin around the first week in July. Rackets and balls are supplied by the Recreation Department. Specific schedules of times will be published later in the program and the child can check with his park supervisor for times and dates.

The first special event for all playgrounds will be held on Tuesday, July 15 at 1 p.m., to be called Bicentennial Day. All children will meet at a central location, to be announced, in historic costumes commemorating the Bicentennial theme. Also on the agenda for that day will be judging of the costumes and prizes awarded for the 15 best costumes.

The next special event is the height of the summer program, the Annual Children's Day Parade. The theme for this year's parade will also be the Bicentennial. Children's Day this year is Wednesday, July 23.

The parade will begin at 6 p.m. from Kingston High School and proceed up Broadway to Dietz Stadium. This year's parade will contain about 10 divisions with the Kingston Indians Drum & Bugle Corp heading the musical contingents.

Another special day is the all-playground Swim Meet to be held on Friday, Aug. 1 at noon at the Kingston Point Beach Swimming Pool. There will be two events offered for different age groups, the 25 and 50 yard freestyle. Prizes will be awarded the winners in each age group and each event.

The last special day will be the annual Paint-In held at Dietz Stadium on Tuesday, Aug. 12 at 1 p.m. The children provide their own paint brushes and the paints are provided by the Recreation Department. Judges will appraise the work and award prizes to the winners. Children of all ages can participate. The Kingston Recreation Department will provide transportation to all the centrally located special events. Times can be obtained from the child's recreation supervisor.

The Kingston Recreation Department's Summer Program will end on Friday, Aug. 15.

County Conservatives to Convene

PORT EWEN — Ulster County Conservatives will meet in convention at the Esopus Town Hall tonight at 8 with perhaps their most important decision being who they should endorse for county clerk, if anyone.

The Conservative nomination could be worth from 3,000 to 5,000 votes for either incumbent Republican Albert Spada or his Democratic opponent, Lewis Kirchner.

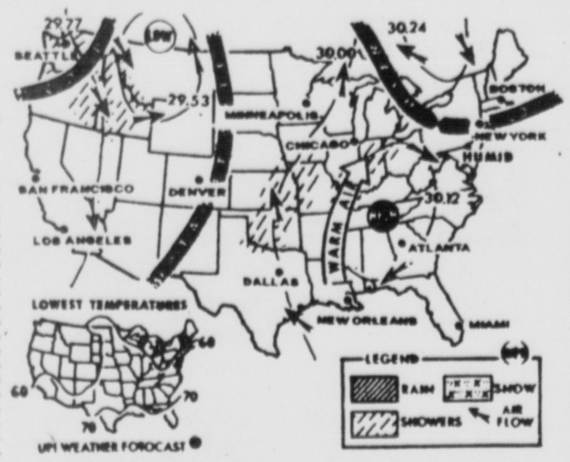
Conservative leaders have been something less than loquacious concerning the contest for county clerk. "It's a real horse race," said Bernard Singer, city chairman. County Chairman William Jackson was unavailable for comment.

The Kirschner forces have expressed some optimism that their man can capture the Conservative nomination, traditionally reserved for Republicans in the county. They point to the fact that the convention is being held in Kirschner's home district (Esopus) and also point to the fact that Kirschner is one of the few Democrats in the county who has gotten the Conservative nomination in the past.

An incumbent county legislator from District 6, Kirschner has enjoyed Conservative backing for his last two runs for that office, both of them successful.

Spada, the county Republican chairman, is known to be a moderate in his party, but still somewhat right of center. His supporters point to the fact that he was nominated for reelection by former Assemblyman H. Clark Bell last Friday night. Bell is the leader of the Conservative wing of the Republican Party.

The Conservatives will also be nominating candidates for county legislature, surrogate judge and coroner.



For Period Ending 7 a.m. EST Wednesday

Dr. Marlow . . . 'I Will Be Vindicated'

BOICEVILLE

When the Onteora Board of Education voted last week to review Dr. Frank Marlow's contract as superintendent, it didn't make public any reasons for the action. Marlow says he doesn't know either.

"No formal charges have ever been presented to me," Marlow said Monday. "At this point, I have no idea of what charges the board has, if any, to present against me."

Board members Beverly Britting, James Darrow, Donald Lawson, Howard Lewis and Sam Mercer voted to hire an attorney to review Marlow's contract and "the actions in which he has been engaged." They were opposed by Edna Hoyt, Irene Motrie, John Mower and Rosalia Schwarz.

Lewis came the closest to an explanation, saying that Marlow "was the issue in the (recent school district) election" and that "there have been instances where you could say he has exceeded his authority."

"Whatever the charges are, I am sure I will be vindicated," Marlow told the Freeman. "I have been performing to the best of my ability and I am confident that under my leadership the district has been constantly moving forward.

"My greatest concern is that the board took this action on the heels of a budget defeat. I hope this will not lead to another defeat when the budget is presented again. If it is defeated, it will place the district on an austerity budget to the detriment of the students. If this occurs, I feel the majority of the board will have acted in a highly irresponsible manner. They should have timed it so it wouldn't have affected the education of the students."

The board's vote to hire a lawyer versed in school affairs to investigate Marlow's contract was the first overt action against him, although sources close to the situation in the Onteora distirct for some time have been reporting serious disagreements between the board and the superintendent. Marlow was given a maximum five-year contract when he joined the district five years ago, but two years later the board tore it up and gave him a new five-year pact that has two years to run.

Marlow also took issue with a published report that the board was forced to take action prior to the end of the fiscal year on June 30 because the district goes on an austerity budget July 1 and would have no money for an attorney under an austerity budget.

"This is not true," Marlow said. "The board can make any legal expenditures it deems necessary under an austerity budget."

'74 Carey Oil Deal... Investigation Is Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb has ordered an internal investigation of the role played by energy officials in a 1974 oil deal involving the brother of New York Gov. Hugh Carey.

The investigation was ordered by Zarb Monday following a weekend newspaper report that Carey, while still a congressman, and Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., applied pressure on the Commerce Department and the old Federal Energy Office to approve the deal.

Carey has characterized the story in the Cox Newspapers as "without foundation,""a fabrication," and "a lie."

An FEA spokesman Monday night said "we're doing a sweeping in-house review within the Federal Energy Administration going back to the Federal Energy Office to see what it involved as far as we are concerned."

The spokesman said that according to FEO records, the agency had opposed the deal "on moral grounds."

The Cox Newspapers report said Alabama oilman Bart Chamberlain, a friend of Sparkman's; and Edward Carey, brother of the New York governor, both reaped "millions in profits" from the deal during the height of the Arab oil embargo last year.

According to the newspaper report, three licenses obtained from the Commerce Department enabled Chamberlain to circumvent federal price controls and sell cheap domestic crude oil at inflated prices to a refinery in the Bahama controlled by Edward Carey.

He sold Carey's refinery almost one million barrels of crude oil, frozen domestically at $5.10 a barrel, for an average price of $13.51. Carey refined it, mostly into industrial fuel oil, and most was imported into the New York area where it sold at even higher prices, the report said.

The report said energy officials objected vehemently and moved to block any further export licenses because they felt the licenses circumvented oil pricing regulations. "But in the face of continuing political pressure, the energy officials backed down," the Cox report said.

The FEA spokesman, Robert Nipp, said Zarb wanted a clearcut answer on the FEA position in the matter and whether any FEA officials were involled.

Approval Is Expected On RR Overhaul Bill

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh L. Carey is expected to soon approve a bill which will begin a wide-ranging overhaul of the state's rail system in an attempt to improve service and stir the slumbering economy.

Both houses of the legislature Monday overwhelmingly approved a compromise version of a bill activating the $250 million rail bond issue approved last November by the voters.

Despite complaints by some lawmakers that not enough money was earmarked for upstate, the Assembly passed it 119-1, and several hours later the Senate voted 53-1.

State Transportation Commissioner Raymond T. Schuler immediately hailed the passage and said his department was "ready to go" in carrying out the plan.

The bill authorizes up to $189 million in contracts for rail improvements, of which $85 million will be spent this fiscal year.

Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut predicted the measure will "ease the state's unemployment, save many freight lines from going out of business and provide relief to overloaded highway systems."

Action on the rail bill was delayed through much of the session as Democrats and Republicans argued over how the money should be spent. A compromise was reached less than two weeks ago between Sen. John D. Caemmerer, R-East Williston, and Assemblyman Thomas R. Frey, D-Rochester.

Under the bill, commuter lines will be given $93 million, intercity passenger lines about $49 million and freight lines about $108 million, with $62.5 million of that figure earmared for upstate projects.

Part of the funds will be used toward rehabilitation of stations, particularly in Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Schenectady, Colonie, Rensselaer and Poughkeepsie.

Man Is Indicted For Robbery, Burglary

KINGSTON

Robert Lee Floyd, 21, of Delvan, who was arrested by state police in April, was indicted Friday by an Ulster County Grand Jury on charges of first degree burglary and first degree robbery.

At the time of his arrest, police said Floyd allegedly robbed an unidentified victim at gunpoint of between $500 and $600 in the Town of Gardiner. Then Floyd allegedly forced the victim to drive him to his house, where he reportedly tied him with telephone cord, struck him with a revolver, and stole property valued at $250.

The partial report of the grand jury was handed up in county court to Judge Raymond J. Mino.

Roasting Poultry Foil Wrapped

Poultry cooked wrapped in aluminum foil can be very tender and juicy with shorter cooking time. . .and they are self basting. In addition, foil permits the use of higher temperatures and therefore results in still shorter cooking time.

Truss a seasoned bird and generously wrap in foil. Place in pre-heated 450°F oven.

Roast to an internal temperature of 185°F.

Conservatives Wooed

The courting of the conservatives, scheduled to take place this week, once again beams the spotlight at this small but considerably influential group. Both the Republican candidates for mayor and alderman-at-large and the Democratic incumbents will personally appear before the Conservative Convention Thursday night, hoping to woo an endorsement to their side. The last Democratic mayoral candidate to receive their blessings was Raymond Garraghan back in 1967, since then they've either fielded their own nominees or have gone with the Republican ticket. What will happen this year is still a closely guarded secret. Party Chairman Bernie Singer, obviously relishing the attentions shown his small but stalwart group, has been publically non-committal, but he does point out some intriguing routes the Conservatives can take. Singer says the options afforded are: endorse one of the other party, split their endorsement or field their own two candidates. Whichever way they chose to go will certainly have an influence on this fall's mayoral election.

Strip-Mining

For the second time in less than six months, President Ford has vetoed a strip-mining bill. His second veto was upheld in the House of Representatives. The vote was 278 to 143 to override, three votes short of the necessary two-thirds majority.

This was another victory for the President over the Democratic leadership but it cannot be viewed with much satisfaction— because it is purely a negative action, blocking legislation in an area where the President concedes action is needed.

The Ford administration should now demonstrate its concern by working hard to get an acceptable strip-mining bill through Congress as soon as possible.

The admisistration strip-mining proposal has been buried deep within the President's comprehensive energy package, which has been stalled for months in the Congress. The strip-mining proposal should now be singled out to advance on its own, independent of the massive and highly controversial energy package.

There have been abusive strip-mining operations that have left huge scars on our land. The land needs the protection and restoration tha t the federal government can provide through legislation on surface mining.

And coal producers need to have the clear guidelines that federal standards can provide. Otherwise uncertainty will delay the development of new coal resources in the Rocky Mountain states that must be developed to meet our need for energy.

The president is concerned over utility costs and the effect on employment and profits in the established strip-mining industry in the Appalachians.

But there are indications that the fears about these adverse effects may have been exaggerated.

The urgent needs of both environment and energy demand that the President and the Congress waste no more time. They should meet each other halfway to enact effective strip-mining legislation.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Lobbyists Scramble for Defense Dollars

By Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON—It's defense authorization time on Capitol Hill, the season for cultivating the taxpayers' green. Lobbysists are now doing the spadework for a harvest of greenbacks in the future.

The great corporate scramble for defense dollars has produced Washington's most formidable lobby. Each new weapon system is supported by the military brass who believe in it, the contractors who manufacture the component parts, the workers who put the parts together and the congressmen whose districts enjoy the economic benefits.

In the backstage wirepulling, the wires often crisscross. The generals and admirals, who promote a new weapons system, often wind up working for the corporations that produce it. The procurement officers themselves are restrained by a two-year rule from going to work directly for the contractors they dealt with.

But there is no rule which prevents Pentagon officials from switching to the congressional committees that oversee Pentagon procurement. Nor are congressional staff members, who help line up the appropriatons for defense contracts, forbidden from signing on afterward with the contractors.

Here are a few cases in point:

—Earl "Red" Morgan, as a staff member for the House Research and Development sub-committee, handled the authorization for the F-15 fighter, harpoon missile, site defense and AMST transport plane. McDonnell douglas wangled contracts on all four of these projects. Now Morgan is a vice president of McDonnell Douglas and he talks to his old colleagues about contracting matters. He neglected, however, to register as a lobbyist.

—Phillip Kelleher, as chief counsel of the House Armed Services Committee, dealt for 17 years with General Dynamics. He is now on the General Dynamics payroll. Kelleher also failed to register as a lobbyist, although he is in contact with Congress about defense legislation.

—George Norris, an old Navy hand, now runs the staff of the House Seapower subcommittee. Invariably, the subcommittee grants the Navy more than it request. This year, for example, the subcommittee added authorization for a nuclear-powered strike cruiser that wasn't in the Pentagon budget.

The fine art of gaining defense contracts depends as much on political influence as professional competence. The Navy's caustic Vice Admiral Hyman Rickover is one of the few who not only have resisted the pressure but spoken out against it. "It is almost subversive," he once snorted, "not to want to spend government money."

Footnote: Morgan at first denied that he had spoken to members of Congress about legislation. When pressed, he conceded to our associate Jack Cloherty that he had "responded to questions" but had not "intiated" any contacts. Morgan said he did not seek his job with McDonnell Douglas until after he had left Capitol Hill.

Kelleher told us he was actually "anti-General Dynamics" when he worked for the House Armed Services Committee. He didn't register, he said, because his duties do not include lobbying. Norris didn't return our calls.

MYSTERY MONEY: The Greek government has called off an investigation, reportedly at the Central Intelligence Agency's request, of a rumor that CIA funds were funneled through Greece into the 1968 Nixon-Agnew campaign.

There were whispers in Greece that the secret CIA funds had been passed to the Greek CIA, called the KYP, which had laundered the money through a Greek government bank. The laudered money, according to the rumors, had been delivered to Greek businessman Thomas Pappas who was a fundraiser for the Nixon-Agnew campaign.

The rumors leaked into print during the 1968 campaign. Pappas issued a strong denial. The Greek junta, then in power in Athens, called the stories "ludicrous."

But a responsible Greek exiled journalist, Elias Demetracopoulos, claimed he had proof of the reports. The order for laundering the CIA money, Demetracopoulos charged, came from Greek KYP deputy chief Michael Roufogalis.

The exiled newsman took his story to then-Democratic National Chairman Larry O'Brien who issued a little-noticed press release. "Mr. Nixon and Mr. Agnew should explain their relationships with (Pappas)," declared O'Brien, citing the press reports that Pappas was a "conduit of campaign funds from the Greek junta to the Nixon-Agnew treasury."

There the matter rested until July 1974, when the junta was deposed, the KYP's files were opened and Roufogalis was interrogated.

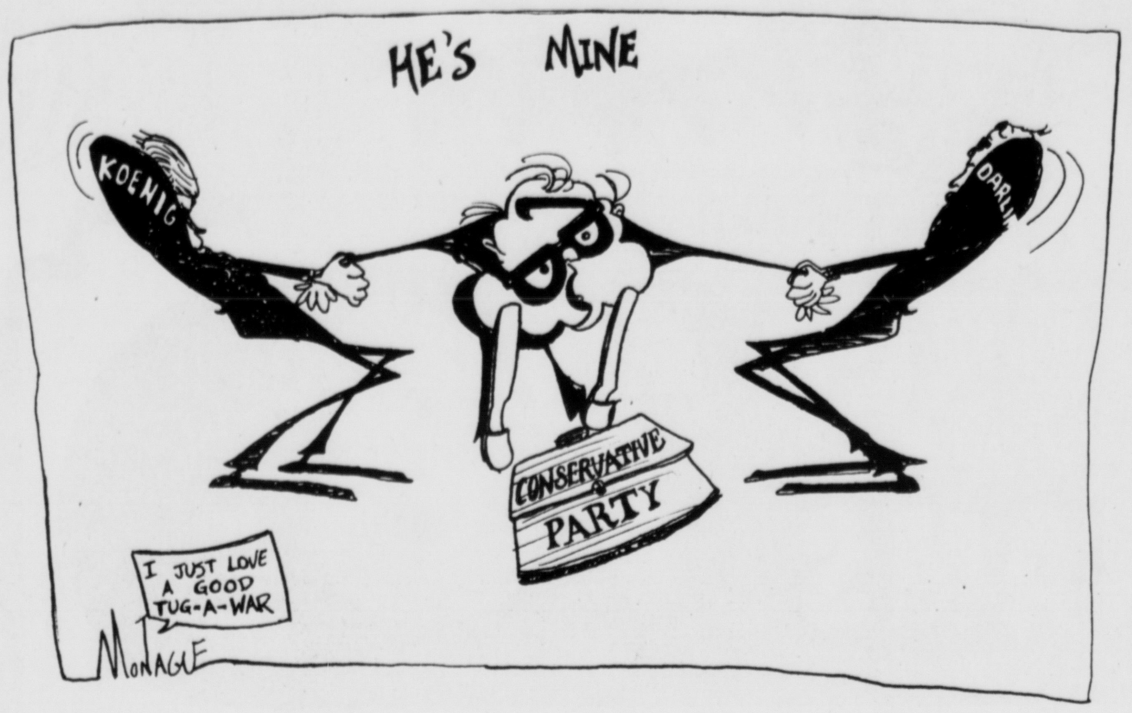
To find out what the new Greek government had learned about CIA funds going into the 1968 Nixon campaign, we called Athens and spoke with Information Minister Panayotis Lambrias.

He said he had heard the reports and indicated that the government planned to investigate them. He promised more information if we would call back in two days. But when we called Athens again, Lambrias never took the call. We followed up with a cablegram, but Lambrias failed to reply.

Now we have learned the reason. Competent sources, close to the new regime, report that the CIA station chief in Athens, Stacy Hulse, made a quiet, subtle request that the government lay off the 1968 fund mystery. Hulse passed the word, according to our sources, to the new KYP chief, Maj. Gen. Constantine Fetsis, who informed his civilian boss, George Rallis.

At a hectic meeting, it was decided to ignore our calls rather than risk worsening relations with the United States.

Footnote: Neither Agnew nor Pappas could be reached for comment. O'Brien recalled his meeting with Demetracopoulos and found his story "impressive" but not subject to absolute proof. The CIA declined comment.



Inside Report

Ford Shifting Into High Gear

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON— Gerald Ford's selection of Army Secretary Howard H. (Bo) Callaway as his presidential campaign manager may prove a master stroke in Mr. Ford's pre-convention strategy: fence in former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and his conservative stalwarts so tightly that Reagan will abandon any hope of winning the nomination himself.

But beyond that, selection of the exuberant, rich and extrovertish Georgia conservative, who had been under active but secret consideration at least since May 27, reveals important details about Mr. Ford's developing political style and its healthy contrast to Richard M. Nixon's.

For example, the President himself has had a series of confidential talks with longtime Republican tacticians, such as Jack Mills, president of the Tobacco Institute who will be a part-time campaign aide, Ohio national committeeman Ray C. Bliss and many more. He is looking to old friends from his days in the House, including Assistant Secretary of Defense Robert Ellsworth, a former Congressman from Kansas, for major jobs in his campaign organization and is leaning toward Richard Cheney as White House liaison for the campaign.

As top aide to White House staff chief Donald Rumsfeld, Cheney's designation as presidential go-between with campaign chief Callaway would give Mr. Ford automatic contact with all elements of the campaign. Such personal, detailed involvement was virtual heresy to Richard Nixon, who seldom deigned to talk politics with traditional politicians.

So tightly held was Callaway's selection, revealed to Callaway himself only on June 13, that Republican leaders in Congress and the party's high command around the country, including Georgia state chairman Mark Mattingly, did not learn of it until the formal White House announcement last Wednesday.

Callaway's name was first quietly surfaced for White House consideration by wily presidential intimate Melvin R. Laird, now the highly-paid "senior counselor" on Readers Digest magazine. Laird and Dean Burch, chairman of the Ford campaign advisory committee, had culled the names of scores of prominent Republicans before settling on Callaway.

With Laird, Mr. Ford's first choice for 1976 campaign manager, out of the running because of his Reader's Digest job, Callaway's assets took on formidable proportions, with one obvious liability: his 1966 campaign for governor (lost by an eyelash) which one White House aide privately described as "racist."

But in the Republican Southern heartland of Ronald Reagan, that criticism is no liablility. Indeed, Mattingly told us that Callaway's selection would unquestionably help Mr. Ford in Georgia if a primary challenge from Reagan actually developed.

More important, Mississippi state chairman Clarke Reed, the most active and vociferous critic of Mr. Ford as insufficiently conservative, says the President "couldn't have done any better" than Callaway for campaign chairman.

The "racist" charge against Callaway's 1966 gubernatorial campaign, moreover, is viewed in the White House as substantially outflanked by Callaway's success in building an all-volunteer Army with the highest black percentage—22 percent—since World War II.

The underlying Ford strategy in trying to convince Reagan and his conservative partisans that a race against the President would be futile has the South as its focal point. Callaway, as a Southern organizer for Barry Goldwater in the 1964 pre-convention period and Sothern regional director for Nixon in 1968, has outstanding credentials among Southern Republican conservatives.

Thus, his selection as campaign manager gives Mr. Ford another lever in the South to go along with his nomination of Dr. F. David Mathews, president of the University of Alabama,to be Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Although some anti-Ford conservatives describe this as "tossing the South a couple of bones," the bone-tossing is having an indisputable impact. That was clear last Saturday in Columbus, Ga., when Mr. Ford spent a highly fruitful hour behind closed doors with Georgia Republican leaders.

The President told the Georgians that "my philosophy is like yours," and the evidence he produced—his successful vetoes of anti-recession spending bills—drove his point home.

The danger in this pre-convention strategy is obvious: that the President will succeed in fencing in Reagan, thus winning the nomination battle hands down—but risking the election war when conservative Repblicans will comprise a minor slice of the total vote.

"Oh, you're a Hemingway fan, too, eh — Ernest or Margaux?"

Nicholas Von Hoffman:

Doing It Better by Ourselves

WASHINGTON (KSF)—Fifty people sitting in the sun porch of what was once Sen. Hiram Johnson's Washington home. The California Republican dead these past 30 years, might have approved of the meeting. He was a great one for local, popular control of the machinery of government. and that's what these people from places like Baltimore, Louisville, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Brooklyn are in the business of trying to do.

They're mostly whites from inner city neighborhoods, people who stayed on after expressions like "inner city" and "urban crisis" fell out of favor and the foundation money was redirected to more fashionable concerns. They have a forlorn tenacity about them, like the young woman from a run-down, mostly black Washington D. C. neighborhood who, after recounting some of her community organization's accomplishments, began to weep as she predicted that she and her associates would fail, that the people in her area would be driven out with the cockroaches and that local self-government would elude them.

Milton Kotler, the director of the Institute for Neighborhood Studies, which convened this meeting, points out that at the end of the American Revolution, New York and Philadelphia had the only two city governments in the country. New York was already in trouble, but the rage to adopt this form of urban polity was unstoppable.

Boston had a population of 43,000 and had been conducting its municipal business by the general meeting of the inhabitants for 230 years. In some years, as many as 6,000 residents attended the deliberation." Kotler explains. "Yet the townsmen adopted a city government . Instead of 6,000 legislating in common, now only 56 persons ruled. . . However this decrease may be called representative government, it still amounted to an oligarchic revolution."

"The new alternative has to be every man a legislator," said Sister Paulette, a nun working with a community group in McKees Rock, Pa., but if the municipal representative government has been a self-evident disaster in so many places no one knows how to re-install direct, democratic rule.

"How do we get power?" another of the conferees asked with little hope of quick answer. "People are so tired of constantly acting as pressure groups, of always protesting without the power to act on their own problems."

There are success stories, of course. One of them, concerning the Nortside neighborhood in Brooklyn, was brought to the meeting by Ron Shiffman, a young architect from the Prattt Institute's Center for Community and Environmental Development in New York. When the City moved to demolish the homes of some 90 families to accommodate the expansion of a manufacturing plant, a social worker was able to rally many of the Polish, Ukranian and Russian-American residents to put up a fight so that, with the help of Shiffman and his students, 41 low-income but private housing units were built to accommodate the evictees.

What was done in Northside is impressive: new housing on scattered-site vacant lots at a phenomenally low price of $28,000 a unit, land costs included; but it is also depressing when you reflect on the near heroic measures needed to bring off something that should be routine self--govermnent, if what's left of our neighborhoods are to maintain themselves. In addition to Shiffman and the social workers, there had to be picketing, civil disobedience and unceasing struggle with the municipal bureaucracy.

"Insted of legislating their communtiy affairs," Kotler says, "citizens are reduced to complaint and grievance." Begging and beseeching is what he calls this repetitious, enervating process where by everyone is so worn out trying to get a stop sign put up or the garbage collected that most people are too drained and too dicouraged to attack the larger, more institutional questions.

The social structure and wealth of some suburbs does give their citizens a little more of a handle on things, although the residents of those communities which have had freeways jammed through them will dispute that. However, except in the richest communities and those places in New England that have kept their town meetings, every sort of formal decision has been taken away from the local level. The people on the block, any block, anywhere, must go miles to beg and beseech, to petition and plead to effect the simplest changes.

The experience of direct self-rule is already in such a remote past, we regard it as an unthinkable impracticality, as a socio-political eden from which we were driven by the forces of history, never to return. The suggestion that even something as easy to do and as intensely loca as the power to zone be vested in a neighborhood assembly is received with incredulous concern. We couldn't handle that. We don't have the expertise. We've lost confidence in ourselves. We know the units of government we depend upon for the most necessary service are failing us, but like the communtiy organizer forseeing her own failure, we can't imagine we could do it better for ourselves.

Buffalo Firemen's Jobs Held

BUFFALO, (UPI) — The jobs of 22 city firefighters were saved Monday in an agreement between the city and a firemen's union.

The workers had been slated for dismissal July 1 to trim the city's budget.

But Mayor Stanley Makowski approved a compromise allowing the men to remain on temporary duty in exchange for firefighters reducing their personal leaves from 90 to 57 hours each annually.

The plan grew from talks between the city and the Buffalo Professional Firefighters Association.

The 22 firefighters on temporary duty will be given the first chance at any permanent openings in the department, a city official said.

Chrysler Rebates

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. today announced a wideranging cash rebate program returning $200 or $300 bonuses to buyers of most of its 1975 cars and light trucks.

The program begins Friday and will continue until Nov. 1, a Chrysler spokesman said.

Three fast-selling models—the Cordova, the Charger SE and the Colt—are the only passenger cars not included in the program.

Even though the new rebates continue through part of the 1976 model year, they are designed to help the No. 3 automaker clear stocks of 1975 cars. The program replaces the traditional 5 per cent rebates to dealers to encourage them to build their inventories at the end of the the model year, the spokesman said.

The rebates are $300 on intermediate and full-size cars and $200 on compacts, Sportsman and Voyager Wagons, vans and three pickup truck models.

Chrysler said it is currently holding meetings with dealers to inform them of the program.

Dealers who stock a certain number of 1975 cars will not contribute toward the rebate. Dealers stocking less than that number will contribute $100 of the rebated amount, Chrysler said.

Economy's Figures Better, But Many Jobless

By UPI

Most economists say they believe the recession has ended. But said AFL-CIO President George Meany, when asked Monday if he agreed: "No, sir, it won't be over until people go back to work."

Using Meany's yardstick, the recession is going to continue for a long time.

Using the indicators of most economists, the recession bottomed out sometime in the last few weeks and the recovery either has begun or is about to begin.

Meany's perception of the economy is based on how many people are out of work. Most economists look at how many people are working.

The unemployment rate is rising and will continue to rise this summer, peaking at 9.5 percent or higher —the highest jobless rate since the last days of the Great Depression.

How can the recession be over when 8.5 million to 9 million persons out of a job force of about 92 million cannot find work in any given month this year?

How can it be over when the jobless rate is twice what once was considered normal —4.5 percent —and is expected to remain 2 or 3 percentage points above normal through 1977?

In this area, the recession has followed the pattern of past economic slumps. When business begins to pick up, employment increases but at the same time unemployment rises.

There are several reasons:

• Businessmen, who were slow to layoff workers after the recession began, are slow to rehire after the recovery has begun. They find it cheaper to work employes overtime than to recall laid-off workers or hire new ones.

• Corporations which suffered profit slumps are anxious to recoup by improving productivity. In addition, many used the recession to trim fat from their blue and white collar staffs and are reluctant to put it back on again.

• The labor force grows quickly when a recovery is under way. This is because hundreds of thousands of persons who gave up looking for work and were not counted in government unemployment statistics perceive better times ahead and return to the job market. In addition, there is the normal growth in the labor market from graduating students.

Economists, however, attach more significance to the number of persons employed. They have found reason for optimism in recent trends.

"In April and May," said Irwin Kellner of Manufactuers Hanover Trust, "the number of people holding jobs increased at a 4 per cent annual rate. That was more than twice the annual average increase of 1½ percent since World War II."

Charles Schultz, budget director in the Johnson administration and now at the Brookings Institute, agrees the recession is over in terms of an end to declining production.

But, he added, "It is a little bit misleading to say the recession is over once it has bottomed out because by using that definition, the Great Depression would have been over in 1933. That's when it bottomed out."

High unemployment lasted until World War II.

Competition Furthered By Compromise Bill

ALBANY, (UPI) — A much-amended plan to allow savings banks to compete with commercial banks by offering checking accounts and other consumer services has been worked out in exchange for a $3 billion investment in depressed neighborhoods normally shunned by the banking industry.

The plan, amended from the floor of both houses of the legislature Monday, calls for the creation of a $3 billion mortgage fund —15 percent of all mortgage committments by thrift institutions.

Savings banks would also have to make at least 60 percent of their investments within New York State, instead of the present 52 percent —a concession intended to help the mortgage market in the state.

Vincent F. Nicolosi,(D-Queens,) the assembly sponsor of the plan, said representatives of major thrift institutions had agreed to the restrictions because of the importance of additional consumer services in competition with commercial banks.

Another development which makes the proposal important is that in October the federal government will begin making direct bank deposits for Social Security recipients, making the ability to offer checking and credit services a critical factor in maintaining savings bank deposits.

The mortgage fund created by the bill would be run by a nine-member board of directors and would function essentially as the mortgage department of a bank operates, actually making mortgage loans, collecting payments and paying the investing banks for their investment.

The fund would offer loans at prevailing interest rates, with a half percent premium added to pay for mortgage insurance. Eight of the directors, including four representatives of the banking industry and four community leaders, would be chosen by the governor with the ninth chosen by the other eight.

The lines of the areas in which the fund could make private housing and commercial investments would be drawn by the state superintendent of banks.

IBM Computer Aids Smaller Businesses

ATLANTA (UPI) — International Business Machines Corp. has announced a computer package for manufacturers with 20 to 250 employes that will enable small businesses to cut costs and increase production.

The package, called the Manufacturing Management Accounting system, offers IBM's smallest System-32 computer plus nine ready-to-use application programs that will help the small manufacturer run a wide range of accounting operations from product status to accounts payable.

C.B. Rogers, Jr., vice president of IBM, said Monday, "These manufacturing programs for the first time put within reach of the small manufacturer a comprehensive set of application programs to help control spiraling costs and maintain a competitive edge."

The cost of leasing System-32 and the programs can run less than $1,000 a month and the entire package can be operated by regular office personnel after a brief training period, IBM said.

LIFE TODAY

Participants in the self-improvement seminar on "How to Do Everything Better," included, front (l-r) Canned Ego experts Connie Perry, Zoe Dourdis and Ellen Peters; rear (l-r) from the audience, Carol Matthews, Maureen and Mary Mccloskey. The seminar and workshop was held in Wallace's Canned Ego Salon.

Self-improvement Seminar Workshop By Beauty Specialists

By Dorothy A. Narel

Hair care, makeup and wardrobe planning — three important items for good grooming — were topics of discussion in a free seminar and workshop given by Gelmby beauty specialists in the Canned Ego Hair Salon at Wallace's recently.

An informal format drew a good attendance of women, young, middle aged and seniors, for the self-improvement and seminar on "How to Do Everything Better."

It seemed to be the sort of programming women enjoy — straight talk on head-to-toe beauty from Glemby's beauty specialists with fashions and makeup through the courtesy of Wallace's manager Joan Kramer.

Three were selected from the audience for a complete "makeover" which included the latest in hair styles done by Canned Egoists Zoe Dourdis, salon manager, Connie Perry and Ellen Peters. Pauline Polacco, cosmetologist for Wallace's, applied the "natural look" makeup while fashions were coordinated by Fashiontime Models.

The beauty and fashion experts zeroed in on beauty problems and offered solutions. They discussed beauty options available to stretch good looks and how to put it all together.

The greatest emphasis was on new hair proportions and setting techniques which Miss Dourdis said ". . . can mean the difference between good and sensational hair. You'd really be amazed how a hairstyle change can make an enormous difference in a girl's appearance."

The Glemby approach to hair styles is to de-shag and de-drag. The workshop demonstrated how a pretty face, lost under shapeless center-part hair could be rediscovered with a controllable hair style and "an easy care cut."

Miss Dourdis explained: "We try to find a shape that won't drag baby-fine hair into the droops and we end straggly hair badly in need of a good-shape-defining cut. The trend is away from the teased, roller type sets although at Canned Ego we offer all types of services. Our method of hair styling is based on a proper cut, blowing the hair dry and the use of an iron for hair setting. It achieves a natural look that women want today," she concluded.

The seminar and workshop also re-emphasized the power of makeup. As the cosmotologist indicated, it is not just putting make-up on but getting the most out of what you use. Since the three girls picked from the audience were youthful, their makeup was of the natural transparent type which permitted their own color to come through. If anything, it was successful because it was understated and helped score beauty points.

As Canned Egoists pointed out during the workshop session: "If you want your hair to behave, you've got to treat it right. Shampoo as often as necessary to keep your hair shining clean. The best beginning is a thorough brushing to stimulate the scalp and always brush forward and up toward the top of your head. Never brush straight back from the front hairline — the hair's weakest there and most easily broken."

Glemby experts also stress that today's hairstyles put the emphasis on hair, not on the hairstyle. They say: "If your hair's not healthy, shining and full of body, the natural look can look like a natural disaster."

What causes unhealthy hair? Too much sun, too-hard water, city stress and air pollution, detergent shampoos, chemical agents used in some permanents, straighteners and haircolorings, illness, too-strict dieting and pregnancy. Of course, there is also such "normal" and hereditary problems as excessive dryness or oiliness and hard-to-handle textures.

Experts feel that individual treatments may vary but all hair can be improved by conscientiously following three simple steps: cleanse, stimulate and scalp with massage and brushing and use a good conditioner.

BEFORE

MAUREEN

Maureen McCloskey at the free seminar and workshop given by Glemby beauty specialists. Maureen learned she didn't have to cut all her hair off for the new natural look, a hairstyle could be adapted and shaped into a new look. Her completed "after" look shows the hair maintaining the center part but the sides have been tapered, blown dry and curled into a style with the use of an iron.

MARY

A straggly, uneven hair style for Mary McCloskey was transformed into a shorter "page boy" cut and iron set while still maintaining her center part. Wallace's fashions, a popular summer halter type with which duck slacks, completed her "new look." The outfit also had its own matching jacket.

CAROL

Carol Matthews, who participated in the workshop portion of the seminar on beauty recently. Before the beauty treatment, Carol had long hair but her "after" look included a hair style that hugged the head more with a shorter, fort-winged cut curved back with the use of an electric curling iron. Her fashions were shown through the courtesy of Wallace's.

Outstanding Teachers For 1975 Selected

Two teachers at the Reginald R. Bennett School, Boiceville, Mrs. Margaret Roosa and Mrs. Elizabeth Rose, have been selected as Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America for 1975. They were selected on the basis of their professional, personal and academic achievements. Mrs. Roosa teaches voacal music and is director of the Bennett School Chorus. Mrs. Rose is School Nurse-Teacher at Bennett.

Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America is an annual awards program honoring distinguisbed men and women in the field of elementary education. Each year, the complete biography and record of achievements of each outstanding teacher is presented in the awards volume, OUTSTANDING ELEMENTARY TEACHERS OF AMERICA.

These educators are now in competition for one of the five national Outstanding Elementary Teachers of the Year Awards. Each national winner will receive a $500 unrestricted grant and an award commemorating their selection. Judging for the national honors will be done by the distinguished Board of Advisors who guide the program.

The men and women chosen for this high honor have explored new paths, developed new insights and effectively communicated their knowledge to their students and colleagues. They are exceptional teachers.

Guidelines for selection include an educator's talents in the class room, contributions to research, administrative abilities, civic service and professional recognition.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 20 and have been seeing a man who is in his early 40s. He is married and is very friendly with my parents. (They don't know what is going on.)

This man's wife lives in L.A., and he lives in the desert for health reasons.

His wife comes out to visit him for a weekend every three months or so. Sometimes he goes to visit her. They don't have much of a marriage.

This man has given me the only happiness I've ever known. He is kind, warm and loving, and has been very good to me. My girl friend says he's too old for me and that I should try to get interested in someone closer to my own age. I've tried and can't do it. Boys my age are too immature for me. All they want is sex. I want something more from a relationship, and I have it with this man. I'm not hurting anyone.

So what do you advise?
HAPPY

DEAR HAPPY: If you're "happy," why did you write? You are hurting yourself by continuing in a relationship that is going nowhere. Wives usually find out. And so do parents. Furthermore, eventually you'll want marriage, and this man already has a wife.

He is probably flattered to have a young girl interested in him, and you're flattered because a man his age is interested in you. If you don't want to be a loser, the advice from here is — lose HIM.

DEAR ABBY: Now that all the excitement has died down over all the Johns who resented the fact that their name is used as a synonym for "toilet," may I have my say?

My parents christened me "Fanny." Now, how did my name ever become a synonym for the part of one's anatomy that one refers to in polite society as a "backside"?
GRIPES MINE

DEAR GRIPES: There are several explanations, but the one that makes the most sense to me is this: During World War I, the members of the First Aid Nurses Yeomanry (or F.A.N.Y.), a British women's ambulance unit, were known as "FANNYS." And they were reputed to have been well-reared. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: No! No! No! I protest your answer to "Wisconsin Mother," whose third daughter was stillborn.

She was asked, "How many children have you?" not "How many times have you been pregnant?"

The response you suggest, "We have two little girls—our third daughter was stillborn," can only make the questioner uncomfortable and keep alive the feeling of sorrow and losss.

C'mon, Abby, "We have two darling daughters," said with a big smile, is the healthiest, kindest and most positive answer for all involved.

Unless she wants sympathy, that mother should keep her medical history out of her conversation.
MOTHER OF THREE

DEAR MOTHER: You are right. I was wrong.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

A VICTORIOUS LOU GRAHAM

Lou Graham Achieves Two Dreams

MEDINAH, Ill. (UPI) — The way Lou Graham sees it, he achieved two dreams —he won the 75th U.S. Open and he kept Jack Nicklaus on the pro golf tour as a regular.

"When I heard that Jack Nicklaus would play in only eight tournaments a year if he won the grand slam, I thought to myself that I'd like to be the one who stopped him from winning the grand slam," the 37-year-old Nashville, Tenn., golfer said.

"I told myself that I'd like to be the one to make him continue playing because it would be a shame if he cut his schedule down to eight tournaments. He would deny people seeing the world's greatest golfer."

Graham won the U.S. Open title Monday, shooting a steady, even-par 71, to beat John Mahaffey in an 18-hole playoff by two strokes. Graham set up the playoff by missing a putt on the last hole Sunday and finishing in a tie with Mahaffey at 287, three strokes over par at the tough Medinah No. 3 course.

Nicklaus, who had earlier won the Masters, first of the four grand slam tournaments, finished the Open at 289 in a tie for fourth place.

Graham has been playing professional golf since 1962 and he had an important advantage over Mahaffey —he had been in two playoffs to none for the 27-year-old Houston, Tex., pro.

The lesson, he said, he learned from winning one playoff and losing the other was that the other players "aren't going to give it to me." So, when he stepped out on the first tee, "I knew John was not going to give it to me. I knew I was going to have to get it. I knew I had to go out there thinking smart and not making mistakes."

Graham, a slender six-footer, never trailed. He took a one stroke lead when Mahaffey missed a short putt on the par-three 187 yard second hole, was even when he missed a 10 foot putt for a bogey on the third hole and then took a two stroke lead with birdies on the fourth and fifth holes.

At the turn, Graham still had his two stroke lead. On the 452 yard, par-four 16th, Mahaffey missed a six foot putt by an inch and took a bogey, moving Graham three strokes ahead.

That should have done it, but as a national television audience watched, Graham punched his three iron shot just over the green on the 220 yard, par-three 17th hole while Mahaffey landed on the green. It took three putts for Graham to get down and Mahaffey just missed a birdie but settled for a par, cutting a stroke from Graham's lead.

On the 18th, Graham's two iron drive hooked left, into the crowd and stopped in the trees on the left hand side of the fairway. A television commentator said the ball hit a spectator and that kept it from going out of bounds.

Graham heard what the commentator said and it had a profound effect on him.

"When I heard it had hit a spectator, I said to myself, 'well, this tournament must belong to Lou Graham.'"

P. J. Boatright, the USGA executive secretary, later said the ball didn't hit anyone but no matter. Graham and Mahaffey, then vainly looking for a break, both thought it did.

"I hit a four iron, a punch shot," Graham said. "And if I'd taken a pencil and drawn a picture of it, it couldn't have been better."

The shot, he said, "came out low and running" and left him about 20 feet off the green for an excellent recovery.

But Mahaffey wasn't through. His own two iron drive was in the middle of the fairway and his second shot, a five iron, took off headed straight for the pin.

"Go in the hole, go in the hole," Mahaffey called.

"It was the best golf shot I ever made under pressure," he said.

It left him a 12 foot putt for a birdie and an outside chance of tying Graham. But he missed his birdie putt and Graham pitched up and sank his par for the two stroke victory.

"I putted awful again today," Mahaffey said. "You can't play a tournament of this stature and not putt."

At least five of Mahaffey's putts missed by less than two inches and that cost him the title and the $40,000 first place money. He won $20,000 which kept him ahead of Graham on this year's money winner's list, $121,665 to $86,071.

Mahaffey said, "If I didn't gain experience, something is wrong with me."

Part of that experience, he said, was learning he should have changed putters after the first day. But he vowed, "I will win."

For Lou Graham, fame finally turned on its silver dollar smile after 13 years in which he had only managed two previous victories, the Minnesota Classic in 1967 and the Liggett & Meyer tournament in 1972. He told reporters with a smile Sunday, "take your pick" when asked which was his most prestigious victory.

Graham got a big kiss from his pretty blonde wife and oldest daughter after his victory and said he planned to return to Nashville this week and "go fishing." He didn't think his victory would change his conservative life style. Matter of fact, he said, he was still having trouble believing he had won the Open.

Cards Double-Zip Mets

Denny Regaining His Confidence

John Denny seems to be quietly regaining his confidence while the New York Mets are slowly losing theirs.

Denny, one of the brightest prospects in the St. Louis Cardinals' system, returned to the major leagues Monday night after a brief sojourn to Tulsa of the American Association and turned in a strong performance by blanking the Mets 4-0 in the second game of a doubleheader.

Denny's glittering five-hit effort came only hours after Ron Reed had stopped the Mets 1-0 on seven hits, thus making the Cardinals the first team to score a double shutout over the Mets since June 4, 1967, when the Giants accomplished the feat.

The Mets, who were blanked by Pittsburgh's Dock Ellis on Sunday, now have gone 35 innings without scoring a run and have lost their last seven games to fall seven games behind the National League East Division leading Pirates.

The Cardinals, who have received plenty of help from Reed since acquiring him from the Atlanta Braves earlier this month, are naturally hoping that Denny can stick around and help bolster a pitching staff that has been only mediocre. St. Louis currently trails Pittsburgh by seven and one-half games and the Cards could sorely use a pitcher of Denny's capabilities.

"There's no question that confidence was my biggest obstacle," said Denny. "I was taken out of games very early and it would get me depressed. I felt badly when I was sent down, but I've had to try and get over my negative attitude. I've tried to get into a different frame of mind.

"The shutout was another dream come true for me. The first was to make the club, the second to win my first game and then pitch a shutout. What's next? A no-hitter, I guess."

Denny won the nightcap when Ted Simmons delivered a pinch-hit grand slam homer in the eighth inning. Simmons' homer, his 10th and the fourth grand slam of his career, came off Jon Matlack, who relieved for the first time since April 27, 1972.

The only run Reed got, or needed, in the first game came in the first inning when Lou Brock walked, stole second and third and scored on Ron Fairly's two-out single.

In other National League games, Houston edged Los Angeles 6-5 in a nationally-televised game, Cincinnati whipped Atlanta 8-4, Philadelphia nipped Pittsburgh 6-5, Chicago blanked Montreal 6-0 and San Diego defeated San Francisco 7-6.

Astros 6, Dodgers 5

Bob Watson's three-run homer capped a six-run second inning which enabled Houston to defeat Los Angeles. Houston routed Burt Hooton in the second inning and sent him down to his first loss in seven decisions under the lights since joining the Dodgers from the Chicago Cubs.

Reds 8, Braves 4

Johnny Bench and Bill Plummer combined to drive in seven runs as Cincinnati defeated Atlanta and increased its lead in the NL West to three games over Los Angeles. Bench hit a three-run homer and doubled home another run to increase his major league-leading RBI total to 61. Plummer, filling in at catcher while Bench took a breather in the outfield, had a two-run homer and a run-scoring single. Mike Lum homered for the Braves.

Phillies 6, Pirates 5

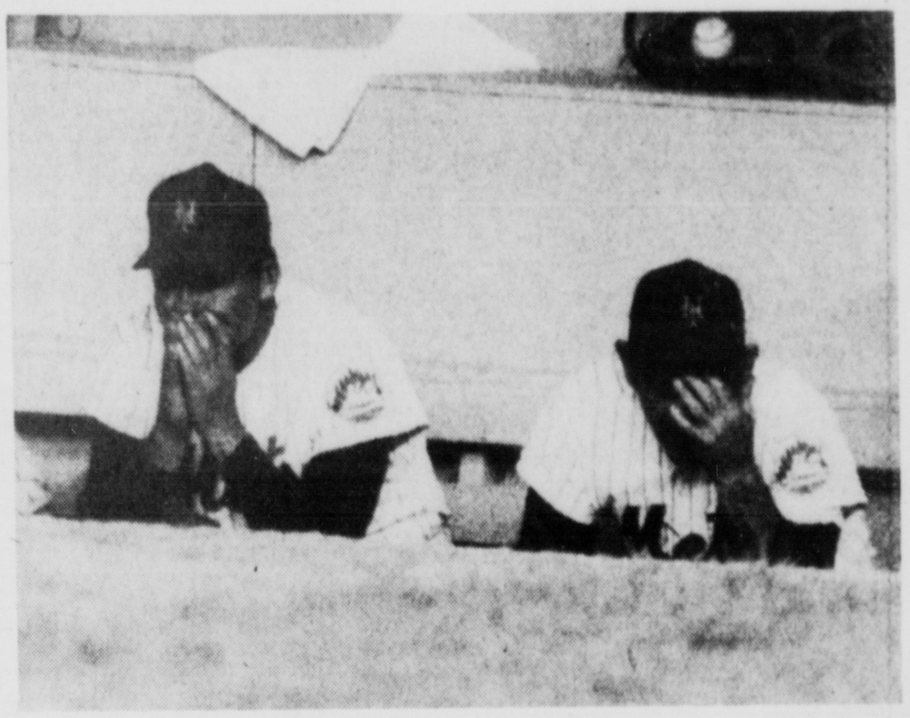
Ollie Brown drove in three runs with a double and a homer to help Philadelphia snap Pittsburgh's five-game winning streak. Dave Cash also homered for the Phillies while Dave Parker connected for the Pirates.

Cubs 6, Expos 0

Ray Burris tossed a seven-hitter and Chicago took advantage of four errors to blank Montreal. Burris walked only one batter while striking out six in gaining his seventh triumph in 12 decisions. He also had two hits, including a run-scoring single.

Padres 7, Giants 6

Willie McCovey drove in four runs, three of them with the 443rd homer of his career, to spark San Diego's triumph over San Francisco. Dave Tomlin, who relieved starter Joe McIntosh in the second inning when the Giants scored five times to take a 6-3 lead, pitched one-hit ball for the next 5 2-3 innings to gain his first decision of the year.



When Will It End?

Met Coach Rube Walker (L) and Manager Yogi Berra peek through their hands while watching their team go through another scoreless game Monday night. Cards blanked Mets twice, making it three straight games in which New York hasn't scored a run. (UPI)

Back in Action

Boston catcher Carlton Fisk, sidelined for 12 months with torn ligaments in his leg and a broken right wrist, returned to action Monday night.

Red Sox Lead, but . . .

Yankees Are Still Wary of Baltimore Orioles

By UPI

Funny thing about the New York Yankees is that they talk like the Boston Red Sox aren't leading the American League's Eastern Division.

Take Monday night when the Yankees defeated the Baltimore Orioles 6-1 behind the eight-hit pitching of Doc Medich. The loss dropped the Orioles 7½ games behind the first-place Red Sox but catcher Thurman Munson made it clear that he and his teammates think Baltimore is the team to beat.

"They always have a good second half of the season," said Munson, who drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a single. "I'm not counting out the Orioles, though, when I say we think we have the most pitching depth.

"Medich just went out there and threw as hard as he could," Munson continued. "He'd been erratic but had to get back his confidence. You can be highly intelligent but lose your common sense when you're going bad."

Medich, who is studying in the off-season to become a physician, said he had a good fastball, a good slider and good control.

"When I have two of the three I'm all right," he said. "When I have only one it's going to be a long night."

Medich, who had pitched erratically since the start of the season, scored his sixth win against nine losses. He is considered the Yankees' key pitcher behind Jim Hunter, the $2.8 million man, and the one the Yankees feel will tip the balance in their favor during the second half of the season.

Munson's sixth homer came in the third inning after the Yankees scored one run on Alex Johnson's double and Roy White's single. The blow helped hand Ross Grimsley his ninth loss against three wins.

Cleveland whipped Boston 11-3, Oakland beat Minnesota 5-2, Milwaukee downed Detroit 8-4 and Texas topped California 1-0 in 13 innings in the other American League games.

Indians 11, Red Sox 3

Frank Duffy drove in five runs with two doubles and a homer and Frank Robinson hit a solo homer, a two-run single and scored three runs to lead Cleveland's 14-hit attack. Eric Raich went seven innings for his third win. The loss cut Boston's first place lead over the Yankees to a half game.

A's 5, Twins 2

Sal Bando hit a tie-breaking homer in the seventh inning and also singled in a run in the eighth, giving the Oakland third baseman three game-winning hits in two days. Paul Lindblad picked up his sixth relief victory without a loss and extended his number of consecutive scoreless innings to 18 1-3 by pitching two-hit ball over the last four innings.

Brewers 8, Tigers 4

Darrell Porter hit a three-run homer and Hank Aaron had four hits and drove in two runs as Milwaukee pounded out 15 hits and handed Joe Coleman his 11th loss against three victories. Tom Hausman shut out Detroit for the last 3 2-3 innings to win his second game.

Rangers 1, Angels 0

Texan won its marathon game with California when Cesar Tovar singled in an unearned run in the 13th. Roy Smalley was safe at second on an error on an apparent double play grounder, went to third on Jim Sundberg's fly and scored on Tovar's hit. Bill Singer pitched one-hit ball for the first 11 innings for the Angels.

Connors Would Like Some Crowd Support

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — John Lloyd, ranked only fourth in Britain, put away a placement and the solid wall of sound sweeping across Center Court drew from his opponent Jimmy Connors an expression of envy.

Connors is ranked the world's number one tennis player, the top seed at the Wimbledon Championships but he could not remember such unstinted support from a crowd in his own country as the 15,000 in Center Court were giving Lloyd in his unequal battle.

Connors won in straight sets, of course, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1 to begin the defense of his singles crown but sometimes it seems winning isn't all.

"I wish the crowds in America would be to me like the English are to their own players in England," he said, somewhat wistfully for a young man generally not given to exposing inner emotions.

Not all the British agree with the delegate from Belleville, Ill., particularly the articulate Virginia Wade, sixth seed in the womens singles which open today.

Miss Wade says that if Jimmy were British the sighs of dismay or thunderclaps of applause that attend every point and are magnified in the bowl to deafening decibels would be as much a mental hazard to him as they are to the native players.

"You can't concentrate for worrying that they are expecting too much from you," Miss Wade said, speaking from sad experience.

But a hometown crowd hungry for a victory is not the only handicap Miss Wade faces —there are others named Chris Evert, Martina Navratilova, Billie Jean King, Evonne Goolagong and Margaret Court. And these tough campaigners in the tennis wars hope to give the spectators more to groan about than cheer at.

Dempsey Is 80

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey, claiming he feels "the same way I did when I was a young man," celebrates his 80th birthday today.

"It's only the body that crumbles, not the soul," said the still robust Dempsey, who until a year ago remained actively engaged in the operation of a large, midtown restaurant. His chief preoccupation now is working on his memoirs, being written by his stepdaughter, Barbara.

Dempsey's wife of 17 years, Deanna, has planned a birthday party for tonight with 85 guests invited.

"These have been the happiest years of my life," she said between preparations for the affair. "I only wish I have another 19 with him." They were acquainted for two years before marrying.

The fabled Manassa Mauler was born in Manassa, Colo., June 24, 1895, and won the world championship on July 4, 1919, when he knocked out Jess Willard in three rounds at Toledo, Ohio.

Following successful defenses against Billy Miske, Bill Brennan, Georges Carpentier, Tommy Gribbons and Luis Firpo, Dempsey lost his title to Gene Tunney on Sept. 23, 1926, at Philadelphia and lost the rematch one year later in Chicago on the famous "long count" controversy.

Dempsey retired in 1932, then came back for three fights in 1940, all of which he won on second-round knockouts, and in 1942 he enlisted in the U.S. Coast Guard, where he was commissioned a Lieut. Commander. He was elected to the Boxing Hall of Fame in 1954.

Dempsey still has an interest in boxing and said he saw Muhammad Ali's last defense against Ron Lyle. He wasn't too impressed, though, commenting, "In our day we fought, we didn't hide behind our hands."

Dolphins Deal Fleming For Charlie Harraway

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins Monday night traded tight end Marv Fleming to the Washington Redskins in exchange for the negotiating rights to former Redskins' running back Charley Harraway.

Harraway played for the Redskins for several seasons — the last of which was 1973. Last year he played with the Birmingham Americans of the World Football League.

The 30-year-old Harraway became a free agent earlier this year when he claimed the Americans defaulted on aspects of a five-year contract he had signed with the WFL club.

Fleming, 33, who has played in five Super Bowls, saw little playing time last year with the Dolphins and caught only one pass. The 12-year NFL veteran was obtained in 1970 in a trade with the Green Bay Packers.

Harraway has said he would like playing with an NFL team which "has got a chance to make the Super Bowl." Harraway has expressed a preference for playing in Miami for coach Don Shula.

The Dolphins also obtained an undisclosed draft choice in the deal.

Lynn Honored

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fred Lynn, the Boston Red Sox rookie outfielder, Monday was named the American League Player of the Week.

The 23-year-old Lynn was selected because of his three home run, 10 RBI performance on June 18 against the Detroit Tigers. He also set an all-time record for rookies with 16 total bases.

Juniors Qualify

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cathy Reynolds of Springfield, Mo., Kyle O'Brien of Indianapolis and Lauren Howe of Colorado Springs, Colo., were the top qualifiers Monday with par 73's in opening day action of the week-long women's Western Golf Association's Junior Championship got under way.

The Last Putt

Bill Van Aken, Wiltwyck Golf Club veteran, lines up his final putt on the 72nd hole of the Ulster County Amateur Golf Championship Sunday at Woodstock Country Club. Van Aken finished third behind Leon Randall and John Buoymaster.

Kings Obtain Dionne

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — As expected, young superstar Marcel Dionne will skate at center for the Los Angeles Kings next season.

In an anticlimatic news conference at the Forum Monday, the Kings announced the acquisition of Dionne, 23, the No. 3 scorer in the National Hockey League in 1974-75, for defenseman Terry Harper and left wing Danny Maloney.

The Kings also gave up a 1976 second-round draft choice to Detroit and acquired journeyman defenseman Bart Crashley from the Red Wings.

News of the Dionne trade had been rumored for the past month and the only question was what the Kings would have to give up.

In Maloney, 24, Detroit got itself the man acknowledged by the league's coaches to be the toughest fighter in the NHL. He piled up 165 penalty minutes last season, scoring 27 goals and 66 points in 80 games.

Harper, 35, was the Kings' captain last season, his 13th in the NHL. He spent his first 10 NHL years with the Montreal Canadiens.

To get Dionne, who had played out his option to become a free agent at Detroit, Kings' owner Jack Kent Cooke gave him a five-year contract estimated at $1.5 million.

"It's established that Marcel is a superstar," said Alan Eagleson, Dionne's agent, "and he's being paid a superstar's salary."

"Most impartial observers who know hockey rank Marcel Dionne, Guy LaFleur and Gil Perreault as the game's most talented and exciting forwards," said Cooke. "We rather think Marcel is the best. And I am confident he'll prove he is."

Although Dionne was unable to take Detroit, a poor team, to the NHL playoffs the last four years, he poured in 139 goals and 366 points in his career with the Red Wings. He scored 47 goals and 121 points this past season as Detroit's captain.

"Mr. Cooke wanted me and he's a man of his word," Dionne told reporters. "I believe I'll give the Kings what they expect of me. I think Los Angeles proved last year that they were a winning hockey team.

DEC Project Results In Death of 20 Hares

RAY BROOK

The Department of Environmental Conservation, already facing criticism for its handling of several incidents involving deer, has confirmed that an effort to trap and transfer varying hares ended with 20 of the large rabbits dead.

An En Con spokesman confirmed Monday that the project ended with hares dead from territorial battles while caged, 40 escaped and 40 turned loose again.

The hares, which are offwhite in winter and graybrown in summer, were originally slated to be transferred to Ulster County.

The Ulster County Sportsmen's Federation had requested it be allowed to import hares but the department rejected the action in favor of the Adirondack trapping program.

During a thaw in February, a spokesman said, about 40 hares escaped from the wire cages at the department's facilities in this Franklin County community and then in March, the mating season, 20 of the animals were killed by other hares in "territorial" struggles in the cages. The dead animals were partially eaten by the living hares, the spokesman said.

At that point, the spookesman said, the remaining 40 hares were returned to their native woods.

The Tri-Lake Humane Society protested the treatment and the Franklin County Sportsmen's Association protested the trapping and caging operations. The Ulster County Sportsmen's group reportedly rejected the planned transfer.

The En Con spokesman said the deaths occurred because the individual, not a department employe, who was licensed to transfer the hares "had not had much experience in handling hares and through an error in judgement they were not put in individual pens."

"We've taken steps to see that it won't happen again," the spokesman said. "We'll give closer scrutiny to make sure" that persons involved in the tarpping and transfer program have adequate knowledge and equipment to handle the job.

The department has recently faced a barrage of criticism over the handling of several cases in which deer which had been domesticated by families were removed by the department. In at least two of the cases, the deer died after being taken by En Con.

Program on Clinton At Old Dutch Church

KINGSTON

A slide presentation entitled "George Clinton and the American Revolution" will be shown Wednesday at Bethany Hall of the Old Dutch Church starting at 7:30 p.m.

Prepared by Donald F. Clark, chairman of the Orange County American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, the slide show depi cts the life of New York's first governor and the contributions he made during the formative years of the American government.

Born in Orange ounty, Clinton served as vice president under Jefferson and Madison. He resided in Kingston for most of his life and is buried in the Old Dutch churchyard.

Clark, president of the Orange County Historical Society and a member of the New York State Board of Trustees of Washington's Headquarters in Newburgh, has been a history researcher, writer and speaker for more than 30 years. He was employed for 42 years at the United States Military Academy at West Point, working as administrative officer, historian and archeologist and a member of the Committee on the Preservation of Artifacts and Revolutionary Works at West Point. He retired in 1971.

Clark's presentation, sponsored by the Old Dutch American Bicentennial Committee, is free and open to the public.

The Old Dutch Church is located at the corner of Main and Wall Streets in Kingston.

Wallkill Grads Told To Avoid Shortcuts

WALLKILL

Robert T. Brown, president of Ulster County Community College (UCCC), told graduates at Wallkill High School Sunday that they should try to "avoid shortcut band-aid measures" when they are temporarily deterred from what they think they want to do.

Urging the graduating seniors to "maintain a sense of balance and a sense of perspective," Brown said, "Whether you will be entering the job market or starting college, bear in ind your need to be flexible."

"Security went out wit the horse and buggy," the UCCC president added, "We live in a time of such rapid change that there is no definite answer that we can be sure will always be correct. The word 'safe' as used today has come to mean uninteresting and unattractive."

"While this is not," he continued, "a time when one can sit back and be smug . . . the economy has not always remained stable, education has always been in a state of crisis and competitiveness is not a new word to our vocabularies."

Brown advised the students not to throw away anything until they have examined and analyzed it. "Don't be afraid to challenge," he said, "but do not attempt to reinvent the whell by rejecting, wihtout consideration, the ideas whic others have developed before you."

"What all of us must realize," Brown concluded, "is that no one can be safe and secure anymore—if indeed he ever could have been. Already within your lifetimes you have seen examples of dramatic change."

Saw an Elephant In Her Pajamas

SHELLEY, Idaho (UPI) — Sharon Jones woke up at 4 a.m. to the sound of crunching noises in her yard and found a nine-foot-tall elephant named Susie looking through her bedroom window.

Susie, after slipping away from her circus and awakening Mrs. Jones early Monday, knocked over a lawnmower, dragged it around the yard, chewed up lawn, trees and flowers and fertilized the front lawn.

Shelley police came to Mrs. Jones' rescue and tried to lead Susie away by a 12-foot logging chain she wore on one leg.

Instead, Susie dragged two officers across 50 yards of farmland and two trenches.

Police Chief Reed Hayes, who missed the chase because "I stayed home in bed," said the big Indian elephant took off through a field dragging his officers.

"One of the officers told me she didn't even have to work hard."

Just as it began to look as though the Shelley police department might spend all day chasing and being dragged by Susie, her trainer, Al Clark, 91, arrived.

Clark "came up and hit her along side the head with his fist and grabbed her by the ear and led her away," according to Hayes.

Susie had run away from the circus on its one-day visit to Shelley after the chain fastening slipped loose. Despite her size, officers said damage during her unauthorized visit to Shelley and the half-hour chase with officers was minimal, confined mainly to the Jones' flowers and lawn.

Arizona Publisher Succumbs

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Eugene C. Pulliam, publisher of daily newspapers in Arizona and Indiana, died Monday of a stroke. He was 86.

Pulliam published the Arizona Republic and the Phoenix Gazette here and the Indianapolis Star and News, as well as the Star and Evening Press in Muncie, Ind., and the Sun-Commercial in Vincennes, Ind.

Princely Vision

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles knew there would be moments like this.

There, right before the future king's eyes, was actress Susan Hampshire in a dress that left nothing much to the imagination.

He mustered all the royal courage at his command.

"My father told me if I ever met a lady in a dress like yours, I must look her straight in the eyes," Prince Charles told Miss Hampshire Monday night, adding:

"Otherwise, someone might take a photograph of me in what might appear to be a compromising attitude."

The blonde actress helped the prince out of his dilemma by cupping her hands over the most exposed extremities. He laughed.

Get Ready For Barge

KINGSTON

Edward Levine, chairman of the Kingston Bicentennial Commission (KBC), has urged representatives of private and governmental organizations to take part in an organizational meeting to plan for the visit next year of the New York State Bicentennial Barge.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. on Wednesday at the John A. Coleman High School on Hurley Avenue.

The bicentennial barge will visit Kingston June 25, 26 and 27, 1976, one of only 32 stops during 1976 and the only one in Ulster County. Exhibits aboard the barge will be supplemented by a shore-side festival, plans for which must be submitted to the State American Revolution Bicentennial Commission by Aug. 1 of this year.

"This will be a great opportunity to provide all our residents with a meaningful and enjoyable bicentennial event, and I sincerely urge you to become a part of it by attending the June 25 meeting," Levine said.

"Let me emphasize that it is your ideas and your participation that are needed. This is not an appeal for funds. The state assumes the cost of the barge itself and assists with some of the attendant local costs. Remaining costs are not expected to be at all burdensome.

Dividend Raised

ARMONK, N.Y. (UPI) — The board of IBM, which increased its profits in the first three months of the year despite the recession, Tuesday raised IBM's regular quarterly dividend to $1.75 from $1.50.

In the first quarter, the company reported profits of $2.95 per share, up a penny from earnings in the same quarter of 1974.

It is the second dividend increase within a year. In 1974, IBM raised its dividend to $1.50 from $1.28.

Nurses Graduate

KYSERIKE

Graduation ceremonies for practical nurses enrolled in the Ulster County BOCES program will be held Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Rondout Valley High School, according to Jack L. Roosa, BOCES administrator.

Robert Johnston, executive director of the Catskill Region TB and RD Association, will be theguest speaker. BOCES President Milton Reynolds will present diplomas to the 36 graduates.

The public is invited to attend the graduation program.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Usually you're an independent thinker, not easily swayed. Today you'll be pressured by a pal and follow some bad advice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be patient when working with people who don't grasp ideas as quickly as you do. It's no great chore to repeat the information.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't borrow something that could get broken because you don't know how to use it. You're all thumbs with tools today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're indecisive about buying an article for the home today, walk away from it. The need is not that immediate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your work habits are still not up to par. You may again try to get by with a lick-and-a-promise today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your easy come, easy go frame of mind may cause you to let a profitable opportunity slip through your fingers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll let a person who could have helped you off the hook today because you're not a good closer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You tend to blurt things out today. You'll tell something better kept confidential to the wrong party.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Steer clear of sales today that offer unique merchandise, or you'll wind up buying gadgets you'll never use.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Normally, tenacity enables you to stick to your guns till you reach a goal. Today, you tend to drop out at the last minute.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20Feb. 19) Study that flash of inspiration carefully before you spring into action. Under the microscope it may not look all that good.

PICES (Feb. 20March 20) Develop your new project step-by-step. You'll fall on your face if you try to do everything in one big leap.

Your Birthday

The course you're presently steering is the right one for you. There are rewards at the end of the road. If you make a sudden change, it could set you back a bit.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams

MOTHER: (Q) Kathy doesn't have a father, and her mother yells at her. When Kathy comes in the least bit late her mother tells her she makes her sick from worrying. And she won't let Kathy do anything, even have phone calls.

I am sure she doesn't want Kathy near me. She thinks I can get away with anything. But Kathy is my friend and I want to help her. Should ;I get involved, and if so how can I help? —Kathy's Best Friend in Pennsylvania.

(A.) You must not get personally into the debate between Kathy and her mother. That is for them to work out between the selves.

But you can comfort Kathy by listening to her and sympathizing with her when she talks to you about her troubles.

You might also suggest to her that she invite other friends besides you to visit her—maybe two or three at a time. Her mother clearly needs to be around young people more. This woudl help her to understand them better and it also might help her to feel needed.

CLAIM: (Q.) I am 14 and I have just met a boy who is very nice to me. Mis name is Regiald. He is 15 and I would like to be his girl friend if he likes me enough.

But Becky, who is my friend, claims he raped her. He soesn't seem to me like a boy who would rape a girl. He hasn't tried anything like that with me. What should I do?—Uncertain in Connecticut.

(A.) Becky may be trying to make some small disagreement with Regianld into something big. A girl who has really been raped seldom goes around talking. about it. She either takes it to the law or she remains quiet.

See Reginald only under chaperoned conditions—at parties and the like. In this way yo can safely find out for yourself what kind of boy he really is.

Danger of Ignoring Sign-off

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Irrespective of system some players will insist on playing the hand come hell or high water. They will not respect partner's sign-off bids.

When you are playing with someone of that type you have only one defense against trouble. You must pass before you get too high.

We can't really blame South too much for his repeated spade bids. He did have a seven-card suit and they don't show up every deal.

At the same time he might have seen signs of approaching trouble and quit at two diamonds. Not that there is anything inspiring about a two-diamond contract, but North might even have made it.

Then, when North jumped to three notrump, South might have passed. The contract would probable be three down, but no one had soubled North.

Still, South went on to four spades and when this got around to East there was a double. South might have gotten out for down two but somehow or other he landed three in the soup to give the opponents a nice, unearned 800 points.

JOSEPH 'YELLOW KID' WEIL

'Happy Birthday, Yellow Kid'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Joseph "Yellow Kid" Weil, the perpetrator of such schemes as selling talking dogs and salting mines with gold dust, sat quietly Monday talking about the old days when he claimed to have bilked businessmen out of about $8 million.

Then two policemen approached Weil —one of the most successful confidence men in American history —but not for the usual reasons.

Instead of arresting him, as policemen had been trying to do for most of his 50 years in the con game, they presented him with a memento of his past in honor of his 100th birthday.

It was a Chicago police bulletin from June 4, 1918, warning police to be on the lookout for the Yellow Kid.

Plastered on the front was his picture. He was described in the bulletin as the head of a "gang of clever con men" with "slate blue eyes, 39 years old, slender, chestnut dark hair, full Van Dyke beard and a fleshy mole on the left cheek."

He was accused in the bulletin of defrauding the owner of the Decatur Copper Mining Co., of $100,000 in a phony stock scheme.

During the 45-minute party at the Lake Front Convalescent Home where he now lives, Weil was treated to a large cake with only one candle. He had some of his friends on hand— even some from the good old days, which were back in the 1920s and '30s.

Hanging in his room was a letter from Mayor Richard J. Daley congratulating him on reaching 100, a milestone not too many notorious criminals can boast of.

Sam's Funeral. . .'Modest Affair'

CHICAGO (UPI) — The funeral for Sam "Momo" Giancana was modest by gangland standards.

Few peers of the former chief of the Chicago crime syndicate showed up Monday for the private service at the Montclair Funeral Home chapel or joined the funeral cortege that carried the slain hoodlum to Queen of Heaven Cemetery.

Giancana had liked to party with friends. But on this day, none of his closest mob associates showed up.

Several investigators said they believed the mob killed him to keep him from talking to a federal grand jury investigating crime syndicate financial dealings around the world.

Giancana also was mentioned in reports of an alleged CIA plot to kill Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, but CIA involvement in the slaying has been ruled out, police said.

Police intelligence detectives kept watch over the funeral. Conspicious by their absence were Tony "Big Tuna" Accardo, elder statesman of the crime syndicate; and Joey Aiuppa, gambling boss of suburban Cicero; and Charles English, reputed jukebox racketeer and close friend of Giancana.

Nor, police said, were there any signs of the show business celebrities Giancana frequently associated with in the 1950s while he was at the helm of the underworld organization here.

Husky ushers and other attendants blocked photographers and television cameramen and shouted at newsmen to "stay away" from the service in the funeral home and from a brief prayer service in the cemetery.

At the Queen of Heaven mausoleum one young man raised his right hand in a vulgar gesture to newsmen.

The last rites were so secretive that a funeral home spokesman refused to say whether Giancana's body was buried or entombed.

The 67-year-old gangster was shot down in his home Thursday —hit seven times in the head and neck with .22-caliber bullets while fixing a dish of sausages and spinach following a welcome home party. Giancana returned to his suburban Oak Park home the day before from Houston, Tex., where he had undergone gall bladder surgery.

25 Years Later...'No Mistakes'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Historians say one reason North Korean troops invaded South Korea 25 years ago was that Harry Truman's secretary of state made a mistake —one Gerald Ford's administration says it will not make.

One indication of this is the announcement by Ford's defense secretary, James Schlesinger, that the United States has deployed tactical nuclear weapons in South Korea and is willing to use them.

In January of 1950, Truman's secretary of state, Dean Acheson, drew the U.S. "defense line" south from the Aleutian Islands to Japan, to the Rykuku Islands, to the Philippines.

He did not include Taiwan or Korea.

On June 25, 1950, North Korean troops knifed across the 38th parallel and within two days had captured Seoul, the capital in the south. Because of the time difference, it was June 24 in Washington.

A total of 33,629 Americans died fighting in Korea. In their memory, six members of the South Korean Assembly were to place a wreath today at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Korea today is an armed camp, on both sides.

In the north, 467,000 are under arms and there are 598 combat aircraft. Pyongyang spends about $800 million on defense out of an estimated GNP of $3.5 billion. The rhetoric of Premier Kim Il-Sung is escalating and there are reports of increased infiltration tunnels and the massing of armored divisions along the demarcation line.

In the south, President Park Chung-Hee's Republic of Korea is reportedly accelerating its mobilization. It has 625,000 in its armed forces and spends $550 on defense out of a GNP of $12.6 billion. The ROK is aided by 42,000 U.S. troops, many in the Air Force.

"The ground forces balance in the Korean peninsula is not unsatisfactory," Schlesinger told his news conference Friday.

U.S. intelligence analysts say the societies are similar, both tightly controlled. The forces in the south are as committed to anticommunism as the northerners are to spreading the people's revolution.

The experts do not feel either China or the Soviet Union will help an invasion from the north. They point to Kim's recent visit to Peking, his bellicose stance, then at the communique issued afterwards in which the word "peaceful" was pointedly issued before "reunification."

The United States is tied to South Korea by treaty. If the north invades, Washington is bound to respond by constitutional means —a congressional declaration of war.

It's not like Vietnam, Schlesinger said. "There is no ambiguity about civil wars and winning hearts and minds. It would be a case of outright aggression and as a result of that I think that one should recognize that the reactions in the United States might be considerably different from those that pertained during the Vietnamese war."

Asked whether there was a serious threat to Seoul from the north, Schlesinger replied, "We don't know the answer, and until we do know the answer to that we should be very careful to remain alert to the possibilities and to keep our powder dry.

"We cannot foreclose any option. We have deployed in Korea the tactical nuclear weapons as is, I believe, well known," Schlesinger said. It was the first time a U.S. official had said that in public.

Schlesinger told Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., earlier this year the U.S. presence in Korea was political. U.S. analysts said one reason was to serve as a "trip wire," so an attack on the south would also be an attack on U.S. troops. Another is the U.S. troops serve to restrain the Park government from starting its own invasion.

"Both the great powers are restraining their clients," one intelligence analyst said. "Peking is restraining Kim by not helping with troops and we're keeping Park on a leash by not letting him build up his air force."

Much of the tough talk from Washington, the analysts say, it to make sure North Korea knows the United States has the power and the resolve to help the south. "That's why the SecDef (Schlesinger) made the announcement about the nukes," one said.

Amin Letter Sent to Queen

By UPI

Two British army officers sent to Uganda to appeal for the life of a British lecturer returned to London today carrying a sealed letter for Queen Elizabeth from Ugandan President Idi Amin.

There was no indication what the letter contained. Amin Monday set a July 4 execution date for Dennis Hills, 61, despite a personal appeal for clemency from the Queen.

Lt. Gen. Sir Chandos Blair told newsmen at Heathrow airport, "I've returned to London with a letter from the President of Uganda. The sealed letter is in my bag. I've not seen it. There is also a copy which is to be taken to the prime minister."

Blair, accompanied by Major Iain Grahame, said he knew "roughly" what the letter contained but said any statement must come from Prime Minister Harold Wilson or Foreign Secretary James Callaghan.

Amin has demanded Callaghan fly to Uganda for face-to-face talks on clemency for the ailing Hills, sentenced to death for referring to Amin in an unpublished manuscript as "a village tyrant."

Callaghan has said he would fly to Uganda if Amin agreed to spare Hills, who is reportedly suffering from cancer.

Blair refused to comment on his talks with Amin over the last two and one-half days. He issued a brief statement before traveling to the Royal Air Force airfield at Northold, where Callaghan was waiting to see him.

The statement said: "I saw Mr. Hills on Saturday and he was well and being well treated, living in an officers' mess (quarters) under an officer's escort.

"I saw Mrs. Hills. She is obviously distressed and perplexed by the uncertainty of the situation and I also saw their 16-year-old son."

Amin, who has turned the on-again, off-again execution of Hills into an international incident, has also hinted he may hold the British community in Uganda hostage in the confrontation with his nation's colonial ruler.

Amin, who describes himself as "the world's best politican" and insists he rules by divine decree, also put Uganda's 20,000 man armed forces on alert and accused Britain of planning to invade the country.

The British Foreign Office said "we utterly refute" Amin's charges of a planned invasion.

Amin postponed last Monday's scheduled execution of Hills after meeting with Blair and Grahame, his commanders in the King's African Rifles. The two officers carried a plea for clemency from Queen Elizabeth.

Personal Files Use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Mere recitations of sex hangups ... are of no value to tax administration," the Internal Revenue Service has decided.

In a report made public Monday night, the IRS confirmed news accounts of how it once maintained computerized files of personal information about selected taxpayers, including gossip about sex and drinking habits.

The IRS report conceded the intelligence system had "major" defects and said it was suspended Jan. 23 after less than two years in operation.

The report summarized an internal IRS investigation launched about the same time the system was abandoned after investigative reporters in Miami published stories about IRS snooping activities.

It was released by Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the Congressional Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation.

The bulky report, ponderously written and at times contradictory, concentrated primarily on IRS intelligence-gathering activities in the Jacksonville, Fla., area and its investigations of possible tax cheaters in the Miami area under the code name "Operation Leprechaun."

The report said Operation Leprechaun was only one facet of its investigative system.

It said many of the targets were prominent citizens, including unnamed politicians and judges, identified to the IRS by Justice Department officials who believed "Miami was a watering hole for racketeers as well as a spawning ground for local corruption."

Cosmonauts Top Soviet Record

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two cosmonauts broke the Soviet Union's space endurance record today, but the new milestone was still far short of the American record.

The two-man Soyuz 18 crew —Lt. Col. Pyotr Klimuk and civilian Vitaly Sevastiyanov — surpassed the old Soviet record of 30 days, 13 hours and 30 minutes in space at 7:28 a.m.

Soviet television reports late Monday said the space team was in good condition, keeping fit with a punishing two hours of calisthenics a day.

The reports said the cosmonauts had "completely adjusted" to their life of weightlessness, but gave no indication how long they would stay in the Salyut 4 space laboratory.

Cosmonauts Alexei Gubarev and Georgi Grechko set the previous Soviet endurance record in February during the Soyuz 17 rendezvous with the three-room space station.

Three American astronauts set the U.S. space endurance record last year with a marathon 84 days aboard the orbiting Skylab station.

Western experts said they expect the two cosmonauts to end their mission before the joint Soviet-American space flight begins July 15.

Klimuk, 33, the pilot, and Sevastiyanov, 40, the engineer, blasted off May 24 from the Soviet Union's Baikonur space center in central Asia.

Soviet news reports indicated business as usual aboard the 20ton station, with Klimuk and Sevastiyanov carrying out medical experiments and studies of the earth.

The two men appeared on evening television programs Monday with another in a series of live broadcasts from space. The cosmonauts never seemed to tire of performing "weightless" tricks for viewers.

Although the two cosmonauts were kept busy aboard the craft, the government newspaper Izvestia indicated the spacemen may be troubled by boredom.

The newspaper said ground controllers have begun piping music to the cosmonauts during slack periods. A favorite was the score from the French movie "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg."
